

ABSTRACT

A device has a substrate in which base components are formed on base plates and functional films are formed on the base components. On the base components, lyophilic films having a lyophilic property to liquid forming material for forming the functional films are provided, and on these lyophilic films, functional films are provided.